

GREG DROZD DRIVER PROFILE

RALLY RACING

The sport of rally racing is rapidly growing in popularity within the U.S. Rallying holds a loyal fan base that has accumulated during the sport's thirty five year history in this country. In addition, recent publicity efforts by the new sanctioning body, Rally-America, that include press and television coverage have sparked and immense growth in public support. These efforts resulted in an increased number of spectators, the return of the Subaru Rally Team USA to the circuit as well as addition of some famous names among the competitors list. With all these changes, things are looking better than ever in the beginning of the 2006 season. Now is the time to invest into a sport whose growing popularity is surely to payoff in years to come.

I believe your company can benefit from promoting products at rally events. There is no better way than by sponsoring top competitors. By sponsoring entry fees and/or needed equipment as well as related expenses your company would allow our team to invest more time and effort into racing and push our performance to the edge, thus allowing us to consistently finish in front of the field and effectively promote your company.

GREG DROZD

Greg has been involved in rally racing since 1998. He is well respected among the competitors for both his driving skills as well as mechanical service expertise. Greg has served as a crew mechanic for several top teams in the U.S. As a driver, he has achieved great success racing Rallycross in the Midwest Region.

In 2003 he competed in two SCCA Rally races, placing 3rd at Auto Value Keweenaw Challenge Rally. He opened the 2006 season by winning the PGT class at the Snow Regional Rally and placing second overall right behind his teammate, thus allowing the G-Rally Team to take both the first and second place trophies in the regional season opener. Greg followed up his first win of the season with another impressive drive, placing 3rd in the PGT class at the Drift Regional Rally. At the Ojibwe Forests Rally this year he won 3rd place in PGT class and was 8th overall out of 82 teams, this time racing in the National event with all the top competitors.
